Year 5 Homelearning

This week/ Next week English
 This week, the children have been using subordinate clauses to create complex sentences and converting sentences from active to passive voice to create a formal tone. These skills will be used next week to write a recount of a nautical adventure and a non-chronological report based on sea creatures encountered on this expedition.

Maths
 Next week, we will be starting our fractions learning which will include finding equivalent fractions and writing improper fractions.

Topic
 We will be continuing our Geography learning about the oceans which will include finding out about the water cycle and climate zones.
 Our PSHE learning this term has been about our dreams and goals. We are developing our understanding of a range of careers. This has included discussing the salaries earned as well as whether a profession should be chosen based on salary. You may wish to discuss this further at home. (Children are encouraged to be respectful of people that have different opinions on this as there is no right or wrong answer.)

Key Dates

Homework Task Look at the data below on Year 5 reading. What can you tell from this data? For example can you calculate the total number of words read by each class in the Autumn term? Can you find the difference between the November and December word count? Can you record this information in a graph? Think carefully about what the numbers would need to go up in on the y axis – number of words read.
 Or create a graph to go with data you've collected. For example make note of how many minutes of exercise you do each day or the number of pages of your book you've read daily and record the information in a graph.
 This homework sheet has been printed on squared paper to help with presentation of the graph. Please ask your class teacher or TA if you need more squared paper. You could have someone at home show you how to create a graph using ICT, if they can.
